COYOTES

It's Pupping Season.

Along with warmer weather and longer days come the arrival of baby animals in spring. Grass and vegetation flourish offering nursing mammals and their offspring plentiful resources to grow. Coyotes also produce a litter of pups.

During spring:

- Coyotes den. Once a year coyotes den to give birth and raise young. The den provides warmth and shelter for the pups. Coyotes can build new dens by digging holes near cover, such as bushes, culverts, storm drains or hillsides. They also re-use dens each year if the site offers protection from predators and the elements.
- Food is in high demand. Young pups cannot hunt for themselves, yet. Adult coyotes must feed themselves and bring food to the den for the growing pups.

How does limiting food access in spring reduce coyote population size?

Reason #1

Coyote litter-size depends on food availability. If food is plentiful a pregnant coyote can produce a larger litter, up to 11 pups. If food is scarce, litter size will likely be under the average of 4-6 pups.

Reason #2

Pup survivability hinges on food supply. Coyote pups have a 60% chance of surviving one year. Urban coyote pups die of illness, disease, or are hit by cars. If food is plentiful, pups can be stronger and healthier.

HOW TO PREVENT COYOTE CONFLICT

- ✓ Remove food sources. Pick ripened fruit from trees and ground. Secure garbage cans with lids. Use enclosed compost bins. Remove pet food and water outside your home.
- ✓ Do not leave children or pets unsupervised. Animals left outside can be taken by a coyote or other animals.
- ✓ Use 'Wildlife-Smart' landscaping. Trim ground-level shrubbery to reduce hiding places and potential den sites.

DID YOU KNOW?

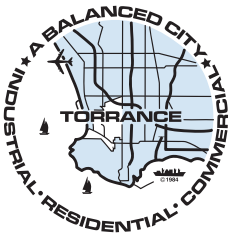

- Coyote den once a year during pupping season: spring months.
- The average urban coyote litter is 4-7 pups.
- If food is abundant, litter size can reach 11 pups.
- Pups stay in the den until they learn to hunt and care for themselves.

Learn. Prevent. Report.

The City of Torrance has begun the process of updating its General Plan Land Use Element and Safety Element to better support housing goals, to be more resilient to and prepared for potential hazards, and to meet state laws.

- The Land Use Element update will amend density ranges and other policies to ensure consistency with Housing Element programs and objectives.
- The Safety Element will be revised to provide updated baseline information along with policies addressing natural and man-made hazards.
- Environmental justice goals, policies, and objectives will be incorporated into the General Plan. These may include language to reduce pollution exposure, improve air quality, and promote equitable public facilities, food access, safe and sanitary homes, and physical activity.

OPIOID AWARENESS AND RESOURCE GUIDE

The Torrance Police Department's goal is to prevent loss of life and educate the public on the extreme dangers of opioid addiction, mental health issues and homelessness.

Many people require help with addiction, mental health and homelessness and don't know where to turn to receive assistance with these services. This resource guide is designed to assist individuals in beginning the process of recovery.

O-Opioid Education

C-Coordinate Victim's Resources
H-Help Eradicate the Problem

Over the past few years there has been an overwhelming increase in drug use, mental health issues and homelessness in the community. The Torrance Police Department would like to offer referrals to any citizen who could benefit from utilizing these programs.

It can happen to anyone...
 Unfortunately, for the unsuspecting public, illicitly manufactured fentanyl can be dis-guised as prescription Oxycodone, Xanax, nasal sprays, eye drops and other forms of medication. Only two grains of fentanyl (the size of a few salt granules) are potent enough to put you at risk of an overdose. Naxalone is a safe medication that can reverse an overdose from opioids; however, it should not be relied upon.
